

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 16 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and scattered heavy showers.

Today:
Cloudy in the far north with some drizzle, else another day of sunshine and showers, these heavy in places with a risk of hail and thunder, particularly in central areas.

Tonight:
Variable cloud and clear spells, with many areas becoming mainly dry. However, showers likely to continue across parts of Scotland, central and southeast England.

Monday:
Scattered heavy showers developing again during the day, particularly across central and eastern UK with hail and thunder likely. Drier conditions expected across the north and west by afternoon.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Brighter spells and showers Tuesday, but cloudier in the north with rain. Many areas drier Wednesday. Wind and rain moving from the west on Thursday. Rather cool.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.